STATE INSURANCE BOARD BILL

The people of Kentucky will not know until the thing is tried out—maybe not until it is "too late"—what Mr. Zorn and the Louisville boosters of the bill are getting for them from the Kentucky Legislature in the insurance board law now proposed for enactment. It is claimed that such a law has proved a failure and a burden in some other states. In Illinois, but recently, a commission appointed by the legislature reported adversely after exhaustive investigation. The State Insurance Board provided for in this bill, and the work it is assigned to do, it is estimated will cost the Kentucky treasury probably no less than $30,000.00 a year, and the bill proposes that this board will fix the rates at which the insurance companies may sell their policies in Kentucky. There is one thing certain, that only an insurance expert is competent to make rates fairly and so to treat fairly the interests of insured and insurer. There is danger of getting some bills in this china shop that will wreck the whole business for the public and for the insurance companies as well, and danger that this business be dumped in

PROPER HEAT FOR CHICKENS

Most Reliable Guide for Temperature Is Action of Little Fellow—Brooders Vary.

(By W. H. KELLY.)

The warmest part of the brooder should be in the center rather than at the side or corner. If the heat comes from above and a considerable portion of the brooder be heated to the same temperature, no crowding will take place.

The temperature given for running brooders vary with the machine and the position of the thermometer. The one reliable guide for temperature is the action of the chicks.

If they are cold they will crowd toward the source of heat; if too warm they will wander uneasily about; but if the temperature is right, each chick will sleep stretched out on the floor.

The cold chicken does not sleep at all, but puts in its time fighting its way toward the source of heat.

In an improperly constructed or improperly run brooder the chicks go through a varying process of chilling, sweating and struggling when they should be sleeping, and the result is puny chicks that dwindle and die.

The arrangement of the brooder for the sleeping accommodations of the chicks is important, but this is not the only thing to be considered in a brooder.

The brooder used in the early season and especially the outdoor brooder, must have ample space provided for the day time accommodation of the chick.

This part of the brooder must be well lighted and somewhat cooler than the hovel. As soon as conditions will permit, get the chickens out on a larger floor, or, better still, on the ground.

Keep the chicks scratching in daylight and sleeping stretched out at night, and the most difficult problem of poultry-raising has been solved.

Liburn Young, of Madisonville, was in town.

A NEWSPAPER ADVERTISEMENT PROBABLY SAVED HIS LIFE

In December, 1905, I suffered severely with pains in my kidneys and could not sleep nights on account of backache. I became run down, fell off in weight and was at that point when I thought I would have to stop my work as saw filer at the Cedar Creek Saw Mill Co.

I had used about everything and had called in my doctor, but all to no avail. After seeing your advertisement in the newspaper, I made up my mind to try Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root as a last resort. After three months treatment I passed a gravel stone and at the end of one year's treatment I was positively cured of all kidney troubles. After taking the first bottle I could sleep at night.

Now I am perfectly healthy and I honestly believe Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root to be a thorough cure for kidney trouble.

I will allow you to publish this where it will aid others who are suffering and in closing I wish to thank you for my present good health.

Yours very truly,

A. M. WILLIAMSON,

Brewton, Ala.

HERBINE

For the Bowels

A Cure for Chronic Constipation, Torpid Liver and Irregular Bowel Movements.

Constipation is the most common disorder of the bowels. It affects both sexes and all ages but is more prevalent among women because their duties in the household require less physical exercise than the occupations of men; therefore women suffer most from its baneful effects.

A constipated person is an easy victim when exposed to any serious disease—Pneumonia, Typhoid Fever, Malaria, Rheumatism, Small Pox, Yellow Fever and Bright's Disease, gather their annual harvest of death among those who are habitually constipated. Even though they escape these diseases, such persons are always ailing more or less. They have headaches, bad digestion, dizziness, vertigo (blind staggers), sallow complexion, flatulence, loss of strength and no energy at all. Herbine has a most admirable effect in the bowels; it is cooling, purifying and regulating. It puts a prompt check on biliousness, wind in the bowels, nervousness, heartburn, bad breath, low spirits, drowsiness in the daytime and nervous wakefulness at night.

Price 50c per Bottle.

By FRANCES BOYD CALHOUN

(Copyright, by Ralphy & Britton Co.)

"Please, Aunt Minerva, just lemme wear it tonight," he pleaded. "Me an' Wilkes Booth Lincoln's been wearin' us rabbit foots ever sence we's born."

"No," she said firmly. "I'll put a stop to such nonsense at once. Give it to me, William."

Billy looked up at his aunt's austere countenance and lovingly fingered his charm; he opened his mouth to say something, but hesitated; slowly he untied the string around his neck and laid his treasure on her lap; then without looking up, he ran into his own little room, closing the door behind him.

Soon afterward Miss Minerva, hearing a sound like a stifled sob coming from the adjoining room, opened the door softly and looked into a sad, little face with big, wide, open eyes shining with tears.

"What is the matter, William?" she coldly asked.

"I ain't never sleep' by myself," he sobbed. "Wilkes Booth Lincoln always slept on a pallet by my bed ever sence we's born an'—an' I wants Aunt Cindy to tell me 'bout Uncle Pil-Jerker Peter."

His aunt sat down on the bed by his side. She was not versed in the ways of childhood, and could not know that the little boy wanted to pillow his head on Aunt Cindy's soft and ample bosom, that he was homesick for his black friends, the only companions he had ever known.

"I'll tell you a Bible story," she temporized. "You must not be a baby. You are not afraid, are you, William? God is always with you."

"I don't want no God," he sulkily made reply; "I wants somebody with sho' 'nough skin an' bones, an'—an' I wants to hear 'bout Uncle Piljerker Peter."

"I will tell you a Bible story," again suggested his aunt. "I will tell you about—"

"I don't want to hear no Bible story, neither," he objected. "I wants to hear Uncle Jimmy-Jawed Jun'ter play his 'corjun an' sing."

"Rabbit up the gum tree, Coon is in the holler Wake, snake; Juney-Bug stole a half a dollar.

"I'll sing you a hymn," said Miss Minerva patiently.

"I don't want to hear you sing no hymn," said Billy impolitely. "I wants to see Sanctified Sophy shout."

As his aunt could think of no substitute with which to tempt him in lieu of Sanctified Sophy's shouting, she remained silent.

"An' I wants Wilkes Booth Lincoln to dance a clog," persisted her nephew.

Miss Minerva remained silent. She felt unable to cope with the situation till she had adjusted her thoughts and made her plans.

Presently Billy, looking at her shrewdly, said:

"Gimme my rabbit foot, Aunt Minerva, an' I'll go right off to sleep."

When she again looked in on him he was fast asleep, a rosy flush on his babyish, tear-stained cheek, his red lips half parted, his curly head pillowed on his arm, and close against his soft, young throat there nestled the left hind foot of a rabbit.

Miss Minerva's bed time was half after nine o'clock, summer or winter. She had hardly varied a second in the years that had elapsed since the runaway marriage of her only relative, the young sister whose child had now come to live with her. But on the night of Billy's arrival the stern, narrow woman sat for hours in her rocking chair, her mind busy with thoughts of that pretty young sister, dead since the boy's birth.

And now the wild, reckless, dissipated brother-in-law was dead, too, and the child had been sent to her; to the aunt who did not want him, who did not care for children, who had never forgiven her sister her unfortunate marriage. "If he had only been a girl," she sighed. What she believed to be a happy thought entered her brain.

"I shall rear him," she promised herself, "just as if he were a little girl; then he will be both a pleasure and a comfort to me, and a companion for my loneliness."

Miss Minerva was strictly methodical; she worked ever by the clock, so many hours for this, so many for that. William, she now resolved, for the first time becoming really interested in him, should grow up to be a model young man, a splendid and wonderful piece of mechanism, a fine, practical, machine-like individual, moral, upright, religious. She was glad that he was young; she would begin his training on the morrow. She would teach him to sew, to sweep, to churn, to cook, and when he was older he should be educated for the ministry.

"Yes," said Miss Minerva; "I shall be very strict with him just at first, and punish him for the slightest disobedience or misdemeanor, and he will soon learn that my authority is not to be questioned."

And the little boy who had never had a restraining hand laid upon him in his short life? He slept sweetly and innocently in the next room, dreaming of the care-free existence on the plantation and of his idle, happy, negro companions.

CHAPTER III.

The Willing Worker.

"Get up, William," said Miss Minerva, "and come with me to the bathroom; I have fixed your bath."

The child's sleepy eyes popped wide open at this astounding command.

"Ain't this here Wednesday?" he asked sharply.

"Yes; today is Wednesday. Hurry up or the water will get cold."

"Well, me an' Wilkes Booth Lincoln just washed las' Sat'day. We ain't got to wash no mo' 'till nex' Sat'day," he
